In 2010 Sally Hogshead wrote a book called Fascinate: Your 7 Triggers to Persuasion and Captivation. It focused on using her research into what she then called the Fascination Triggers and using them to market products and services. I was a fan of that book, and was one of the first to recommend it. (You can read my recommendation here.)

Fascinate: Your 7 Triggers to Persuasion and Captivation

In the business bestseller ‘Fascinate: Your Seven Triggers to Persuasion and Captivation’, brand consultant Sally Hogshead uses empirical research into the psychology of fascination – from sex fetishes to strip clubs and the laws of attraction – to show that there’s nothing supernatural about being fascinating – it’s all to do with 7 mental triggers that bypass rational processing and evaluation to powerfully influence our primitive limbic brains.

Throughout the book, Hogshead explains the seven triggers of Fascination. They are: Lust, Mystique, Alarm, Prestige, Power, Vice and Trust. Each trigger causes reactions in people, whether physical, emotional or intellectual – and those reactions cause people to respond in different ways.

Fascinate: Your 7 Triggers to Persuasion and Captivation

The seven triggers of fascination - lust, mystique, vice, alarm, power, prestige, trust - are easy to remember but are not really useful because they are blanket terms that encompass whole hosts of things that aren't commonly associated with those words per se. The book is interesting, but unfortunately doesn't really deliver.
