Focusing on the Western philosophical tradition and the work of contemporary feminists, Jean Elshtain explores the general tendency to assert the primacy of the public world--the political sphere dominated by men--and to denigrate the private world--the familial sphere dominated by women. She offers her own positive reconstruction of the public and the private in a feminist theory that ...

Central to the feminist perspective is that men dominate the public sphere whereas women are essentially relegated to the private sphere. This dichotomy has served to entrench the patriarchal system and ensure the oppression of women. For instance, women find it difficult to raise issues that impact upon them.

Some women are going to prefer a hairy man, others are going to prefer a hairless man, but the majority of women are not going to express a preference either way because whether or not you shave your pubic hair or wax your chest is not what really turns her on. What really turns a woman on is a man's confidence in his sex appeal to her.
